

Iceland's Prime Minister and his wife share moment with Westshore Foundation chair

By Les Stoodley

During a weekend of hectic activity during the 124th Icelandic Celebration in Gimli, Iceland's Prime Minister Sigmundur David Gunnlaygsson and his wife Anna Sigurlaug Palsottir had an opportunity to view the work of Icelandic artists in the Interlake region and at the same time learn about the work of the Westshore Community Foundation. Visiting the art display at the Dr. George Johnson Middle School on Sunday afternoon, the PM and his wife saw the stands provided for displaying paintings. Funding for the stands came from a grant the art organization had received from the Westshore Foundation. Connie Magnusson-Schimnowski, President of the Foundation spoke briefly with the Prime Minister and his wife. They provided a photo opportunity to be added to the Foundation's archives and website.
